Fablaw introduces online contract management service

Updated 21 April 2009

Franchising and business law specialist practice, Fablaw has created an online contract management service for clients, aiming to cut legal fees and administration costs.

Fablaw Director, Kelly Ey says many enterprises have contracted consultants, other workers or machinery.

"They manage projects or events, attract sponsorship, lease and manage property, enter into contracts with growers and producers," Kelly says.

Kelly has put lessons learned during 15 years of legal practice into the fab sao service.

"The fab sao system has been developed to enable pro-active contract management and reduce operating costs, particularly legal fees, after more than 15 years working with iconic corporate and commercial clients, from the franchise industry to international hotels, manufacturers and mining companies," Kelly says.

"Key contracts are sorted and stored online. Renewals and other routine functions are automated for cost efficiency. The system, available online via a secure user name/password log-in, enables businesses to anticipate critical dates and actions.

"Strategic reports can be generated at any time, in both standard and customised formats, tailored to the requirements of each business operation.

"Fab sao encourages more direct communication, mobility and a transparent business culture. This web-based technology is fully mobile, enabling people to work anywhere that has an internet connection."
